

There's More

by Hans Mayer Copyright 1996 Myther Music

There's more to you than what meets the eye
There's more to this world than earth and sky
Like the changes that make a butterfly
There's more than what meets the eye

There's more to a sound than what meets the ear
Like a whistle that only a dog can hear
A roaring river, or a silent tear
There's more than what meets the ear

There's no such thing as a little lie
It makes no difference what the size
No one will believe you a second time
A lie is still a lie

There's more to life than me, me, me
There's always somebody more in need
It's better to give than receive
There's more than me, me, me

There's more to colors than just black and white
Just look at that rainbow in the sky
Tell me how many colors can you find
There's more than just black and white
